

Captain Jasu — Outfit Build Guide

She is 155 cm (5 ft 1 in). Twenty-eight, slight and fine-boned, and the smallest adult in the film.

THIS FILE IS DERIVED FROM `outfits.yaml`. That file's components: `list` is the source of truth — route, quantity, status and the reasoning for every piece. When it changes, this changes. Do not edit this file to record a design decision; edit `outfits.yaml` and rewrite this from it.

Read this first — the superseded guide

A guide called `Jasu_outfit_build_guide.md.docx` was uploaded to Drive on 2026-08-01 and is wrong. It was written from photographs rather than from the design, two days before the v2 rebuild, and it misread five things. If you have a copy, replace it with this one.

The old guide said	It is actually
A shorter wearer, height understated	155 cm (5 ft 1 in) — re-cast 2026-08-03
Ankle-height boots, "Chelsea or combat"	TALL — shaft well up the calf, ending below the knee
A whistle as a belt fob , "vintage keychain fob"	Exactly ONE whistle, at her THROAT. The belt carries none
A bought Etsy leather pauldron for the mantle	Stiffened cloth, made not bought. See the warning below
Hair cuffs / "viking hair rings"	Two bone horns , printed, deliberately mismatched

Only the trousers advice survived intact — equestrian jodhpurs really are the right match, and that reasoning is kept below.

Sizing

Nothing off the peg fits her, and "looks thrifted" is the one thing this costume cannot look. Buy for construction and alter to fit. On Vinted add Petite to filters where available, look at UK 4–6 / XS, and read the seller's stated inseam and sleeve length rather than trusting the size label.

The base top in particular must be altered to fit her exactly once found.

The build

1. Ribbed base top — mock neck, stand collar, front closure

Bought ×1. Heavy ribbed knit, dark warm brown.

Search by construction, not by look — ribbed mock neck, ribbed base layer, ribbed zip turtleneck. Ski and thermal base layers and dance wear all turn up constantly secondhand with the right ribbed texture.

Must be altered to fit exactly. £3–8.

2. Shoulder mantle

MADE ×1 — do not buy one.

Stiffened cloth — ribbed, quilted or pleated, holding its shape by construction. Sharp upswept point at each shoulder, warm dark brown, rising at the back into the stand collar.

NOT leather. NOT printed. NOT a bought pauldron. The superseded guide recommended a ready-made Etsy leather pauldron. `outfits.yaml` records that as "the single most wrong thing it is possible to buy for this costume" — it reads as fantasy armour and collapses her whole silhouette.

3. Trousers — quilted outer-thigh panels, knee pads

Bought ×1. Dark warm brown.

Equestrian jodhpurs or breeches are the real-world match. Contrast knee patches stitched onto a fabric leg is exactly this construction, and riders resell them constantly. Search `jodhpurs brown`, `breeches brown`.

Panels and distressing are added in-house afterwards. £5–15.

4. Forearm bracers

Made ×2. Leather, riveted, buckled, dark.

Forearm only — wrist to below the elbow, not continuing up the upper arm. One of the few places leather is correct on this costume.

5. Wide belt, buckle and fittings

Bought ×1. Broad leather, plain heavy buckle. Men's belts are often the right proportion even on a petite frame. Buckle and fittings printed if nothing suitable turns up. £3–10.

6. Belt pouches

Bought ×2.

7. Holster — belt-mounted, her RIGHT hip

Made ×1. Leather, hanging from the belt down the right thigh, grip up and angled forward for a right-hand draw. Built around the A180, not around a generic pistol.

8. A180 blaster pistol

Printed ×1. The weapon Jyn Erso carries in Rogue One — reference at `reference/props/a180.jpg`.

Two-tone: bright polished steel forward, black at the back. Six vent holes near the muzzle, fluting part way back, mounting rail with a knurled knob, chequered raked grip.

IT MUST FINISH BRIGHT AND CLEAN. Everything else in this production is dulled and distressed; this is the one thing she looks after.

9. Bone horns for the headdress

Printed ×2. Pale bone, matte, yellowed with age. Never polished, never carved, never set in metal — they are trophies from what the akk kills, and a worked finish turns them into jewellery and collapses the reading.

THEY MUST NOT MATCH EACH OTHER. Long and sweeping on one side, shorter points on the other. A printer produces a perfect matched pair by default, and a matched pair is a manufactured ornament rather than two things taken off two kills. This is the printing trap recorded in `Costume-Build-Method.md`.

They sit set into swept-back dark hair, above and behind the ear. Her hair is worn down and loose — never styled, never gathered up.

10. Whistle on a cord

Printed ×1. THE HERO PROP.

Small, cheap-looking, much handled, worn at the throat. It is her entire command structure — she whistles and the beast comes, she whistles and it kills — and it is worth nothing to anybody else. It is the most important object she owns.

THERE IS EXACTLY ONE, AND IT IS AT HER THROAT. The belt carries no second whistle. A generated test on 2026-08-03 came back wearing two, and two makes it an ornament instead of an instrument.

11. Leash — heavy, coiled at her LEFT hip

Bought ×1. Heavy strap or chain, coiled and hung at the belt on her left, off the drawing side.

Never in her hand and never on the animal. She is carrying restraint she does not need, as a display for the crew.

12. Boots — tall, close to the calf

Bought ×1. Brown leather, practical, genuinely worn.

TALL — the shaft rises well up the calf and ends below the knee. Confirmed against a generated A/B on 2026-08-03. Not ankle boots; that was the v1 error.

Charity shops are the best source and the wear is wanted — do not pay extra for "like new". The best boots in the crew, and looked after.

What she is not

Nothing about her is insignia, and nothing about her was issued. Everything is good material and everything is battered: faded across the shoulders, mended at the cuffs, mud to the knee.

Not an Imperial officer — no rank plaque, no code cylinders, no peaked cap, no gleaming jackboots. She commands eight people and a dog; there is no empire behind her.

Not a samurai and not a Jedi — no lacquered plate, no laced armour panels, no wide flaring shoulder guards, no horned helmet, no face mask, no robes, no sword.
